Imagination Station's Slime Time is Saturday and Sunday

TOLEDO, Ohio – Slime. It's made with simple household ingredients, but has fascinated generations of kids and adults. Toledo's Science Center is hosting a weekend dedicated to the popular polymer. Slime Time is this Saturday and Sunday, October 5 – 6 at Imagination Station.

Visitors can dive in and get sticky and messy with these activities:

- Slime Buffet
Visitors of all ages can whip up a crazy slime concoction by visiting various slime stations. They will then analyze their recipe by testing their slime's stretchiness, plotting their data and comparing it with others' results.
- Slime Tasting
While most slimes contain ingredients that aren't edible, Imagination Station's slime worms are made using a food-grade alginate that are quite tasty, but definitely slimy.
- Ooblek Experiments
Also ooey, gooey and sticky, ooblek is the classic example of a non-Newtonian fluid. Visitors will be amazed at how ooblek can immediately change state from a liquid to a solid and back again.
- Slime Demonstrations
Two lucky visitors each day will be the highlight of an Extreme Science Demonstration where they will be 'slimed' with gallons of goop. Visitors wishing to participate will get messy. A change of clothes is recommended.
- Slime Mania Expo Drawing
All Imagination Station Slime Time visitors may enter to win a 4-pack of VIP tickets to the Slime Mania Expo, featuring YouTube slime sensation, Karina Garcia. Visitors unable to attend Slime Time, may enter to win online at imaginationstationtoledo.org/slime-time.

Slime-lovers wishing to take their slime knowledge to the next level can register for a Think Tank Workshop where they will make Pumpkin Guts, Witches Brew and Ghostly Glow slimes. Super Spooky Slime Lab workshops are available the following dates and times:

- Saturday, October 4 at 12pm and 2pm
